PORTRAIT PROCEDURE AND FEE SCHEDULE

Once size, session length, composition, and pricing are completed--questions of clothing, environment and where the portrait will ultimately be displayed are considered, this can be done by phone or a personal meeting. If travel is involved, the previous considerations will be done via e-mail or by phone, leaving the initial meeting to include time for the client and artist to become comfortable together, complete the photography session and simple sketches which include notations of color. Prior to the meeting she would like to be directed to the location where other like-portraits hang, for viewing.

Elizabeth prefers to paint from life with natural light, but understands this is not always practical. She is accomplished in the area of shooting digital reference and only works from her photographs. If she will be working from her reference she will request one or two sessions to be made available for a live sitting. Photo sessions last approximately one hour with additional time if needed for staging. In the case of young children or busy executives, a shorter photo session may be held if desired.

Elizabeth makes the final decision of reference to be used, but the clients input is always welcomed. The client will have final approval of the composition before the painting proceeds. A 40% non-refundable deposit is required at this time. Under no circumstances will the reference photographs be released or sold.

Delivery of the painting can vary based on size, medium, work load and weather. Elizabeth tries to accommodate special occasions so let her know if this is an issue.
